Role of Soccer Salesman Something New for Primo

Primo Villanueva was out of cast. But he was still carrying the ball, even if it was for another sport.

Primo Villanueva . . . hmmmm! The name had ring to it. Primo Villanueva . . . nmmmm: The name had ring to it. Let's see now, it was in 1954 that the B.C. Lions were born: "The Lions will roar in '54." That was the slogan. The Lions won one game that inaugural season, and the next year they got a fellow who has been a Vancouver citizen ever since.

It was Primo Villanueva, fresh out of the University of lifornia at Los Angeles, and if relatively small by today's standards, still very good as a football halfback and a B.C. Lion until 1959. Besides, he was one of the club's most popular

High School in Vancouver. "Not so good," he said of the club's record, "I think we finished third out of four." Of high school football, he suggested the B.C. variety has a long way to go before it can hope to close the gap on the U.S. type.

"There just isn't any solid program, equipment is usually only meagre at best, and any Canadian kid trying to make it in the U.S. just can't do it through the high school program

Canadians Need Time to Catch Up

This was no rap against the youngsters, just the system, which has been knocked before, and it's tough on Canadians because "it takes them a long time just to catch up to the American player," he suggested.

And the Lions? "I'm more of a fan now than when I was playing," he said. "And they've got something this year," he enthused of the signing of Johnny Musso, a running back from the University of Alabama."

But talking football wasn't the express purpose of Villenue.

But talking football wasn't the express purpose of Villanue

Primo is the front man "T've never done this before" for the Spanish International TV network which is presenting here, and in several other cities in the United States and Canada, soccer, live, and in color, two of the quarter finals of the European Championship Cup. The feature matches are between England and West Germany, and Italy and Belgium, one following the other, the first game being truly live, and the second one, delayed about two hours, because in actuality, both games are being played at approximately the same time.

Reaction so far? "Real good," in some places, "not bad" in Vancouver, he said of the games which will be shown on a giant screen at Memorial Arena, April 29.

Spoken like a true salesman which Villanuers also is Ten Spoken like a true salesman, which Villanueva also is. For besides operating a specialty restaurant, featuring Mexican dishes, since he retired from the Lions 13 years ago, Primo also is in the marketing field. is in the marketing field.

'Roundball' Venture Danny's Idea

He sells tamales and other Mexican fare. "I make food, and market it," he said, of his firm, Primo's Enterprises. Yes,

And how, pray, did an ex-Canadian football player get involved in soccer football? Well, it seems that Primo has a brother, Danny Villanueva, who probably will best be remembered for his place-kicking chores with Los Angeles Rams and Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League. Danny also happens to be part owner of a Mexican TV station in L.A., which is tied in with Spanish International, which has TV rights to the European Cup, and would you give us a hand in Canada?

Thus Primo now is a soccer salesman. Besides, he's thinking of opening a restaurant here.

Does he know anything about the game? "Not really, I've never had anything to do with roundball," he said honestly. "I was hoping you'd tell me," he laughed.

"But they tell me, this is a big playoff, and then ask the question would you pay $8.50 or $10 to see the Super Bowl?"
"I sure would," Primo said he replied.

Well, that's what this is for soccer fans, I was told. Which is why I'm here."

But then Primo always was an honest workman.

Billy Martin has stopped fighting with his players. He's now fighting with the fans.

The quick-fisted Detroit Tiger manager, who made headlines three seasons ago by knocking out pitcher Dave: Boswell, mixed it up with a man on the street Wednesday night.

The fight, which ended in "no decision," came after the Tigers had been decked by Baltimore Orioles, 5-2.

"I wasn't mad about losing or mad about anything," ex-plained Martin, whose playing and managing days have been studded with battles, "but this guy was blocking my way to the team bus. He was swear-ing and I told him to get away. I pushed him. He called me a name, dove at me and knocked me against the

With several Detroit players and a group of newsmen watching, the antagonists thudded to the hard ground with Martin's fists swirling. The back-alley brawl lasted about a minute before members of the Detroit group pried the two apart.

HE BACKS DETROIT?

The fan identified himself as Jack Sears, 25, and said he has been a red-hot Detroit rooter from Pontiac, Mich., who has been living in Balti-more for 15 years.

"All I said was, "You guys better win tomorrow night," said Sears. "He hit me first and I grabbed his legs when we went down because I'm went dow a fighter.

Martin and the Tigers veren't the only ones in action Wednesday night. Six other American League games were played as Chica-go White Sox beat Texas Rangers 2-1; New York Yan-kees trimmed Milwaukee Kangers 2-1; New York Yan-kees trimmed Milwaukee Brewers 3-2; Cleveland In-dians beat Boston Red Sox 3-1; Minnesota Twins crushed California Angels 12-3 and Oakland Athletics took a pair from Kansas City Royals,

Before the fireworks outside Baltimore's Memorial Stadi-um, the Orioles exploded for three runs in the eighth inning to defeat the Tigers. Boog Po-well's opposite-field double to left knocked in the tie-break-ing run and Paul Blair added two insurance runs with a single that chased Detroit ace Mickey Lolich.

Tough New Marine Controls Urged in City MP's Bills

bills introduced in the House of Commons today by Victoria MP David Groos could ensure strict control of shipping approaching Canadian ports.

But, it should be added, private members' bills - despite their good intentions - rarely result in legislation. Groos is optimistic, however, and explains that the three bills will generate legislation, perhaps in the form of amendments to the Canada Shipping Act, Groos is in Victoria to con-

Apollo Mission in Trouble

HOUSTON (AP) - Mission control ordered Apollo 16's lunar module pilots to delay touchdown on the moon at least one orbit today and considered cancelling the landing because of a failuse in the engine of the separately flying com-

The command shp was unable to execute a firing on schedule and consideration was being given to re-docking the ships and starting for home using the engine of the lunar

"We have a wave off," ground controllers told John W.

Young and Charles M. Duke Jr. just 25 minutes before they were to steer the lunar craft Orion, to a landing in the moon's unexplored mountains.

A spokesman for the National Aeronautics Space Administration said: "The crew of Apollo 16 in the lunar lander Orion and command Ship Casper are in no immediate danger. We're holding off on the landing until we get the problem straightened out." The thrust vector system controls the stabilization, rate of firing and the steering of the big command ship engine. Mission Control said that if it could not be corrected, experts were considering redocking the ships — flying only 100 feet apart.

Then the astronauts could fire the lunar module engine to brake out of orbit to head back to earth.

It cropped up when Thomas K. Mattingly, alone in the command ship Casper, reported he was unable to fire the craft's engine because a secondary circuit on a thrust control device did not come up to specifications during a check.

Only minutes earlier, the ground had advised Young and Duke to "anticipate a wave off."

The had separated Orion from Casper two hours earlier and were preparing to fire their engine to start the descent to the surface. They had checked out all systems, and except for a few minor problems, everything was working well.

The landing had been set for 12:41 p.m. PST.

At the time of separation, the two ships were in orbits ranging from about 12.4 to 67 miles above the surface.

Then Mattingly was to have fired the command ship engine to raise his orbit to ranging from about 60 to 70 miles high to conduct a series of experiments while Young and Duke were on the moon.

The astronauts are in no danger.

QUEBEC (CP) -Leaders of Quebec's 200,000 striking public service employees said today they will recommend that their members defy any provincial government legislation that would order them back to work.

Yvon Charbonneau, president of the Quebec Teachers Corp. and spokesman for the union common front which includes the Confederation of National Trade Unions and Quebec Federation of Labor, said the decision was taken by an inter-union council meeting today.

The decision followed what he said was a government decision to break off negotia-tions with the unions whose members have been on strike for 10 days.

Meanwhile the Quebec national assembly began emergency debate on the strike The government was to introduce special legislation later dealing with the stop-

At the top of the field, International Telephone and Tele-graph chairman Harold Geneen's salary last year was $812,494, with Henry Ford II ranking second highest paid at $689,000, followed by Ford president Lee Iacocca, at $675,000.

Some top executives had their pay doubled or more during the year. Among these, Gallagher listed Charles Branch, president of Dow Chemical, raised 196 per cent to $305,089; President Ed Cole of General Motors, raised 121 per cent to $497,534, and Chairman A. P. Fontaine of Bendix, raised 130 per cent to $280,664.

After 28 Years . . . Kubelsky Is Back

By BRYAN McGILL

Benny Kubelsky, 78, came back to Victoria Wednesday after he last dazzled them here 28 years ago.

And quite a welcoming committee greeted him as he stepped out of a private airplane at Victoria International Airport.

There was Allan Purdy and John Di Castri of the Victoria Symphony Society, and all these Chamber of Commerce people dressed in 19th century

Airport staff stopped working to get a good look at him, newsmen and photographers surrounded him, and an elderly woman was yelling: "Is that him? Is that really him?"

Town crier Fraser McAlpine started crying something about declaring him "a citizen of love" as the great celebrity looked dourly on at this performance and all these people in old costumes.

these people in old costumes. When McAlpine presented him with a top hat as a symbol of love, Kubelsky blinked in disappointment before saying: "No money?" — which got a lot of laughs from the crowd of 100 in front of the

Later in the afternoon, after he was taken downtown to the impress in a 1939 Packard, it came out why this man, whose celebrated humor plays much upon people's memory of his long-standing gags, wasn't exactly bowed over by the old Victorian costume bit.

GAGS AN ACCIDENT

Asked during a press conference in the vice-presidential suite if he missed the days of radio, he retorted: "I don't miss anything I've done in tht past. I don't delve in nostalgia and in years ago."

Kubelsky, who some people know as Benny, Jack Benny, also dispelled a few other misconceptions about himself.

Most of his famous gags

Most of his famous gags and gestures were accidents, including his theme song, Love in Bloom "Love in Bloom was an accident. I didn't like Love in Bloom as my theme song. I would pick anything but Love in Bloom."

When asked by a reporter to tell his radio audience any Beiny mentioned that The Godiather was "really a great movie". Pressed for an explanation, he snapped back: "I explained it. I—said it's great."

He doesn't go for the "filth and dirt" in today's movies. "You not only can't take your children to a movie, but you can't take Pat Boone." That broke up the press.

ALSO GOT OFFER

On Burt Reynolds recently being the nude centrefold in Cosmopolitan magazine: "I did get a definite offer myself - from Popular Mechanics."

Benny is performing, lonight with the Victoria Symphony to raise money for it.

Benny, in his act as a concert violinist, mists he istrying desperately to do quite well. That makes it humorous. Any mistake I make is because I can't help myself."

Benny Kubelsky is actually an accomplished violinist. He started performing when he was eight, some 70 years ago in Waukegan, Ill.

But the kid from Waukegan, in his usual self-deprecating way, contended: "There isn't a violinist in the symphony here that can't play better than me."

"I wish it would be true."

Missing Woman's Body Found

FORT ASSINIBOINE, Alta. (CP) — The body of Mary Ann Plett, a 29-year-old Edmonton real estate agent missing since last Sept. 15, has been found near this northwestern Alberta community.

Mrs. Plett disappeared after she left her Edmonton office to show an unidentified male client some land just outside the city.

Her decomposed body was found Wednesday during an RCMP search that started after two workmen stumbled on some clothes in the Fort Assimboine area while digging a ditch last Friday.

In Edmonton, 75 miles southeast of here, city police said they were questioning a man who was in custody in another case.

Mrs. Plett, mother of two young boys, had used her own car for the business trip into the country. The car was found parked at an Edmonton used car lot.

Early in November, a briefcase and its contents found by a hunter in the bush near here was identified by Jake Plett as belonging to his wife.

RCMP searched the area with dogs just as winter began to close in, but found no further clues.

'Absolute' Job Security New Goal of CS Group

OTTAWA (CP) Federal public workers must be prepared to battle for absolute job security, a shorter work week and a better deal for women workers, a vice-president of the Public Service Alliance of Canada said today.

"Our goal is quite clear; there shall be no layoffs in the public service," J. K. Wylle told delegates at a convention of the solicitor-general component of the alliance.

The number of government workers laid off is relatively small, he said, but "outside of national defence, this situation rarely took place in the past."

EXPECTS TO PAY 'PRICE'

Mr. Wylie said that on the way to absolute job security, alliance members should demand longer periods of notice and guarantees that displaced workers will be retrained for new jobs.

"It may be that we should be ready to pay a reasonable

Mr. Wylie also said the alliance should seek radically new conditions and standards for its 43,500 women tab

He said secretaries are unhappy with the classification of their jobs on the basis of "rug" standards—"that is to

The alliance hopes to establish within the next year a reduction to 35 hours from 37½ hours in the public service work week, Mr. Wylic said. The next goal may be a 4½-day, 32-hour work week.

A Move Beyond Weapons?

today in the statement of Mr. George Meany, president of the powerful AFL-CIO labor organization, that he believes strikes are no longer a good policy in labor disputes. While insisting on the right of labor to strike, Mr. Meany says strikes are not now preferable as tools: "I don't believe they mean what they did years ago."

That is a watershed concession by a top labor leader, but it is supported by the trend of modern labor conflicts. The day of the "tidy" strike, when a body of employees walked out on a single employer in an effort to enforce its demands, is pretty well over. The growth of large corporations and large unions, and the subsequent development of still larger associations of corporations and interrelationships of unions, have put strikes - and lock-outs - far beyond the limit of straight economic weaponry.

Strikes on the scale that is becoming common today are essentially social phenomena, and their effect is on society as a whole throughout a community or a country, with all the disruption, loss and hardship that this may en-

on the day when Mr. Meany's comment to a Senate committee in Washington was reported, the news also noted the predicament that was arising in Toronto, where a strike of 4,000 civic employees had stalled garbage collection for ten days. A Montreal item told of the province-wide walkout of 210,000 public employees who have been fined $85,850 for defying a government injunction to keep essential workers on the job. And a dispatch from London reported that Britain's 290,000 railway workers, on a slow-down strike, have been ordered by the courts to return to work for a 14-day period.

The Toronto dispute has created a health hazard through the accumulation of garbage; in Quebec the hospitals and schools, among other services, have suffered; and London has been seriously hampered by stifling traffic problems as a result of the reduced transportation service.

Such disputes obviously move beyond the management-employee area into general community problems, and on this basis the community must move to protect itself. Canada as a whole has experienced similar situations brought on by airline and post office strikes. Labor's objective in some cases appears to be to inflict disruption on will be a general demand to grant the strikers' claims and resume the system lies the greater mystery of efforts to carry out a joint Soviet-

American manned earth-orbiting space mission by the mid-1970s, there could be an even greater attempt to link all scientific aspects of the space program of both the Soviet Union and the United States. If the two superpowers unite to promote such studies very rewarding results might be achieved. And the scientific precedent on the moon, in orbit around the earth or elsewhere in space could, ironically, stand as a beacon for programs of co-operation on earth. At a time of slightly renewed cold-war tensions it is worth thinking about.

And with progress reported on the public to a point where there improved considerably. Attending a United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNC-TAD) in Santiago, Chile, Mr. Paul Martin, the government leader in the Senate, revealed that Canada's contribution to under-developed countries has been rising at an annual rate of 15 per cent since 1968, about twice the rate of the increase in GNP. Currently, our contributions abroad amount to $346 millions of which about $52 millions goes through international agencies. "

Considering that Canada's GNP was more than $92 billions in 1971, our external aid still falls short of the proposed international goal of one per cent of a nation's GNP.

That goal, set in 1968 by UNC-TAD, was re-endorsed by the Commission on International Development chaired by Mr. Lester Pearson in its report of 1969. The time limit for achieving the goal was set forthcoming nowadays. There is a stiffening in public reaction, particularly when existing wage rates odo not indicate any hardship for the workers concerned, and the demands appear exorbitant in view of the inflationary effect.

Strikes are not all gravy even for successful strikers. It may take a long time, even at increased pay rates, for the individual's losses in an extended strike to be made up. And where the ramifications of labor alliances push the effects of strikes into more and more labor bodies, some perhaps quite unconnected with the original dispute, the wisdom of Mr. Meany's comment becomes clearer.

Mr. Meany has appointed a committee to find an alternative weapon to the strike. It may well be that a weapon is not what is required to solve modern labor disputes, but a system of logic and unarguable economic fact. The search for such a rewarding solution is one in which management, government and consumers should also be engaged.

back from the Easter recess, have been sharing with each other tales, more than usually-harrowing, about life among the hostiles in various regions.

It is one of the problems of contemporary politics that many of the tradiional rules have gone by the board. Axioms, established by decades of experience, have been cast into doubt. They may be valid here, invalid there. All is uncertainty and squarely in the middle

Not so long ago it was generally accepted that a public, or even a private, work is a good thing, reflecting credit alike on the member and on the government which he is privileged to support. We owe the classic statement of this view to a distinguished Quebecer of the last century who observed on one occasion: "Railways are my politics." this day a Newfoundlander will fight to the death for a wharf and two governments will collide over a tractor plant; the one maintaining that it should go to Moose Jaw, the other fiercely contending

No Guarantee

One might reasonably conclude from past studies on this subject that a member, once assured of a work, could anticipate a flowery reception on his return to a constituency. This may happen but cannot now be guaranteed. The alternative, as suggested by reports from the Toronto area, is the sort of reception accorded Custer on the Little Big Horn.

When it became apparent some years that the international airports at Malton and Montreal were obsolescent, there were suggestions that the time had come for a new approach. Both economy and long-term planning might be served by a single port strategically located on relatively cheap land in the triangle treal. After all, the Heathrow-Gatwick complex serves a comparable area and even larger population.

Such views were not encouraged since it was abundantly clear to every thinking member that they were utterly at ce with the findings of political science. When in the course of time it was announced that hundreds of millions ere to be sunk in the project at Ste. Scholastique, there were ominous rumblings from the direction of Toronto. It was clear, at least in some quarters, that the government had erred in its priorities. There were, however, immediate assurances that Toronto had not been forgotten. While protracted delays gave to a good deal of impatience as revealed by repeated inquiries in Parliament, much gratification was expressed when Mr. Jamieson was able to announce that Pickering would be the site of one of the world's larger airports. On the principle that a public work is good thing, Toronto area members ought now to feel that the world is their oyster. Estimates of cost vary, but Paul Hellyer, who has had a rich ministerial experience, says that the $200 million to 'starters'' and that expenditures should approach the $1 billion expected at Ste. Scholastique. It should be evident to every grateful citizen that Pickering is not a wharf.

In the age of ecology and anti-pollution, however, the first thought of a public-spirited citizen, confronted with a gift horse, is to look it in the mouth. His second, this being also the age of participatory democracy, is to arrange for mass inspection with the local members It is not that aroused electors are necessarily opposed to progress. The cemeteries, according to one anxious member, have blossomed with signs "We shall not be moved." But this may not signify an opinion adamantly against public works; merely the view that they ought properly to be located somewhere else.

A somewhat similar thought was expressed recently in Parliament by Barnett Danson, a Toronto area member. He developed in persuasive fashion the arment of some years ago that the airport ideally should be located near the centre of the triangle. Cries of protest were immediately heard from Kingston to Cobourg. The message seemed reasonably clear: the Government, if knows what is good for it, will trifle with someone else's ecology.

As a recent comment by the Prime Minister indicates, the commotion in outhern Ontario has not gone unnoticed in Ottawa. Speaking of Pickering, Mr. Trudeau observed: "If the majority of the people who would be served by airport, even if only 51 per cent, didn't want this airport, then we wouldn't proceed with it

Regrettably Hazy

This remark, unquestionably, is in the finest spirit of participatory democracy although perhaps not altogether helpful affected members. The principle ems reasonably clear: good works ought not to be forced on participating democrats against their will. The practice, in contrast, has been left regrettably hazy.

Two problems are involved. First comes the question: 51 per cent of what? Is the majority to be sought in Pickering; in the Toronto-Hamilton area; generally in southern Ontario or among residents of the whole country who will be privileged to share in the bill? The most obvious answer to the question. What citizens are served by an international airport? may be, What citizens are not? If agreement is achieved on this point, a second question arises. How is the majority, whatever it is, to be discerned by an afflicted member or by the afflicted Government? Mass meetings are not necessarily conclusive. For every thousand citizens who turn out to speak up for the birds and bees, there may be another thousand at home waiting impatiently to be expropriated. To form: Do the cemeteries speak for Main ple answer to such problems; the ballot box. According to reports, certain members are endeavouring to arrange local referenda and finding these ventures extemely expensive. In any case, such procedures are haphazard since the primary problem has not been resolved. Further, if direct participation is imperative in the case of good works such as airports, will it also be a requirement in future for good works, such as wharves?

The odds are considerable, in my view, that the Government, in the fashion of its predecessors, will settle in the end for the images in its crystal ball. But this may be of limited consolation for members since there can be no assurance that the word coming through to the Government will be the same message received by an earnest MP with his ear to the grassroots.

Life was altogether simpler when a ood work was recognizably a good work and a good member a man who pounded most insistently on the Ministerial door.

With all these new uncertainties, where is a prudent man to find safe ground when he addresses constituents, actual or prospective? Fortunately there are a few staples which seem as yet to have been untouched by change. One of the more promising is the decline and fall of the Other Party, a theme recently developed by a Conservative candidate in the Ottawa area who charged that the Prime Minister had broken with the "true Liberalism of Laurier, St. Laurent and Pearson.'

Changed Assessment

Of the various Conservatives on the national stage, none, so far as I can recall, recognized the true Liberalism of the Pearson era when it was in full flower only a few short years ago. But generosity of spirit is always welcome in public life. There is little doubt that John Diefenbaker, in similar fashion, will be identified with true Conservatism the moment he shakes off his peculiar habit of seeking nomination in Prince Albert.

Whether one be Liberal or Conservative, the reassuring fact about the Other Party is that it has been in continuous decline ever since the golden age-never precisely identified by historians-when stood four-square for principles.

My own earliest recollection of politics has to do with a meeting in Medicine Hat addressed by R. B. Bennett at some point in the 1920s. Mr. Bennett, dwelling on the dismal state of the Other Party. recalled the great days of true Laurier Liberalism, "Oh, what a fall was there, my countrymen," he thundered. There was general apprehension in the theatre since it could not be doubted from his tone that the Day of Judgment was close at hand.

With every man his own ecologist, it is no longer possible to count on the appeal of good works, even on the billion dollar scale. What remains dependable is the Other Party, once glorious, since it demonstrably attracted desirable votes, but now perversely mindless of its ancient principles and thus deservedly headed for the political abyss.

cific strategy, readjusting the United States' own defences and its military relations with Asian allies, is now perceptibly taking shape. The strategy came inevitable after the Nixon Doctrine was announced and following subsequent force reductions in South Vietnam, version of Okinawa to Japan and the altered status of Taiwan.

Its basic change is decreased use of American ground forces in overseas acreased reliance upon American air and naval forces. This shift in emphasis coincides with growing depennce upon ground forces of nations allied to the United States and a comp ment to help their modernization by additional aid programs.

One immediate result is enhanced importance of the sparsely inhabited Pacific island area known as Micronesia conquered from Japan during the Second World War and, precisely 25 years ago, assigned to U.S. Trusteeship by the United Nations Security Council

More Micronesia Basis

The new Pacific strategy calls for more bases in Micronesia but negotiations are to begin this month between American and Micronesian representatives to discuss the future of the islands including an altered political status.

The Pentagon has been in close touch with the American negotiators. Washington wishes to assure that no other powers will be allowed to move in mil tarily and that additional U.S. base facilities can be arranged. There is no intention of constructing new "Okinawas" but there is a desire to create more fuelling, logistical and communications facilities, perhaps by reactivating moribund Sec ond World War bases. This procedure - part of an offshore strengthening process that extends all the way into the Indian Ocean - is considered by the Pentagon as only part of 'total force concept." This means that Washington hopes its Asian allies, re-equipped by the U.S., will put more more "mutual."

The approach is already being applied in South Korea. American troop strength there has experienced the first us cut since the mid-1950s - from 64,000 to 41,000 men. A five-year pro-

Korean ground forces. Air defences have e been improved by stationing there a new unit of U.S. Phantom (F-4) jets. The reshuffle should save the United States half a hillion dollars over the next five

The big strategic question mark is Japan. Tokyo has promised to increase half the percentage of the gross national product set aside for self-defence - from about five-tenths of 1 per cent to about eight-tenths of 1 per cent. But this still has to obtain parliamentary approv-

But even if the larger military appropriation is enacted, Washington will subsequently urge another increase and will help in modernizing Japan's forces.

The intention is to reduce both the U.S. costs and the U.S. presence in Asia without impairing defence in areas considered vital enough to cover with mutual security treaties. This process depends heavily upon Congressional cooperation because of the need to pay out in expanded military aid part of the savings accomplished.

No Diplomatic Snags

No serious diplomatic snags are expected in Micronesia or Asian lands with which the U.S. has already had formal Philippines. But South Vietnam provides a special problem. Its protection is coved only by a protocol to SEATO and not by a normal-alliance.

Although in theory it would be possible to negotiate such a pact with Saigon it is obviously out of the question for political reasons to even contemplate such a step - above all now. Instead, the program of reducing U.S. forces there con-tinues apace. The ultimate goal is to reduce the American military aid mission there to what it was in the Eisenhower years - not much more than 300

But until Hanoi settles the prisonersof-war question it is intended that a U.S. military presence — air, sea and ground — will be kept in South Vietnam for an indefinite period.

The over-all Pacific policy is being carried out with maximum caution and inimum flamboyance. It has, one might say, twin objectives. It seeks to reduce the expense of protecting key positions or valid commitments while maintaining their effectiveness. And it seeks to lower the American military profile in the East without letting it slip over the horizon of isolationalism.

Its spokesmen are constantly pointing to the increase in vio-lent crime and saying how terrible it is. Constantly being testy about the possibility of violence in labor confrontations. Forever lecturing against violence in political demonstrations on campuses

Yet in vengeance it will whip its citizens and thereby establish a credibility gap. For how can it practice what it deplores and expect to be taken seriously?

Ziemba is in his mid-forties. He was convicted of rob-bing an elderly man of $85 and severely beating him so that he was hospitalized for 10 days and received treatment for a broken wrist.

County Court Judge Wilfred Leach sentenced Ziemba to eight years' imprisonment and 10 strokes of the lash. The whipping would be a deterrent to others "of a like mind", Judge Leach said.

Recently a majority of the Ontario Court of Appeal upheld the sentence. Chief Justice G. A. Gale and Mr. Justice F. G. MacKay maintained that as long as the whipping section remained in the Criminal Code the decision could not be faulted. Mr Justice G. T. Evans disagreed saying that the offence was not of the class of those rare and exceptional cases that

Getting the Spanners Out

By ABU ABRAHAM

Bangladesh may well be the last case of a small country being helped to freedom by a bigger neighbour. Bangladesh got Indian support, but the Pakhtoons and the Baluchis, if they choose to secode from Pakistan, will very likely have to fight alone.

The large nations seem less and less inclined to get involved in revolutionary or nationalist movements. The point has been brought home particularly strongly to South Asians by the new understanding reached between the Chinese and the Americans.

In Asia we are, I think, witnessing the second phase of the anti-colonial struggle. What has been happening on the Indian sub-continent is fundamentally of the same na-ture as the convulsions in Ireland, the Middle East, and

The imperialists when they withdrew from their former possessions left spanners in the works everywhere. By spanners I mean military dictatorships and religious and racial divisions of all kinds. They made genuine progress impossible. Now these countries are trying to get the spanners out. It is going to be a hard job.

For 25 years the Western public have looked on India and Pakistan as two natural nation States that arose out of British withdrawal. The fact that one was carved out of another by a group of religious bigots with the con-nivance and active help of the withdrawing Power never influenced their attitude. Nor, did the fact that one is a secular democracy and the other a theocratic dictatorship. In other words, they equated the works with the apanner. The blame for every mishap was placed equally on both sides. And the liberal-minded, seeing that the spanner was weaker than the works, naturally gave the rmer more sympathy and support. It has been clear almost from the start that if Pakistan had a democratic government it wouldn't be able to stop ordinary people in both countries from fraternising. The ties of blood, language, and culture are too strong. A separate identity for Pakistan can only be maintained by artificial divisions, and ultimately by force.

Pakistan is going to be rocked by political and social turbulence in the coming months and the world's Powers, and particularly the democratic nations of the West, will open again be on test in regard to the attitude they take.

India has now become an aguit nation, conscious of its strength and with faith in its-ability to look after its own interests. Its relationships with the outside world are likely to undergo a radical change. India will be less dependent on the West for economic and political support, and though for a time it will draw closer to Soviet Russia even this special relationship is not likely to last long.

It has been said that Nehru was an idealist and dreamer and that Indira Gandhi is a realist. This is of course true, but there's more to if than that. Indira represents a new generation that has little emotional attachment to Britain or the West.

India's friends in the West; those who are well disposed to the aspirations of this country, should remember this change in our attitude. We are not hostile to the West, but we do not want to be patronized. We want more understanding and less advice. Western liberals seem to expect Indians (and in fact all coloured peoples) to be Gandhian and nonviolent in all circumstances, though when white nations use force they think it is a form of

In the most obvious cases — Hyderabad, Gos, Bang-sh — where Indians felt that force had to be used, Westerners have thrown up their hands in horror instead of trying to understand the reality of the situation faced by this country. The very same newspapers which have staunchly supported the independence of the Nagas (supported with arms by Pakistan and China) could not warm themselves, to understand the feelings of the people of Bangladesh or the role that India had to play in their lib

No, this won't do. A true dialogue and understanding can only come if India and the West establish common values and interests, and not try to prove each other's moral superiority. Asia has suffered enough from the actions of Western Powers trying to propagate democracy. Democracy may yet survive and even spread in these parts: after all, there are now 75 million more people who swear by democracy and secularism, ideals which the West has only accepted in Asia with an amazing

A good example of the kind of superior moral tone that the West often adopts to Asia was an article in one of the leading Sunday newspapers of London, Placing the My Lai massacre "in context," the paper wrote: "The in-cident underlines how impossible it is for Americans to fight this war on terms that are morally acceptable to Westerners." The implication, intended or not, is that the Americans were corrupted by the low moral standards of Asia. This is the biggest load of insult that I've seen

It wasn't like that 35 years ago. If one of my employers of those days had created havoc in her drawing-room by throwing a party, her greeting would have been something like this:

"Oh, Celia," she would have said:
"I'd like you to do the drawing room really thoroughly this morning. Be sure you move all the furniture out, and brush under all the cushions, make sure there are no crumbs left anywhere. Oh and Celia, would you please pay special attention to the top shelves? Last time, I found a dirty winsellass up there after you'd left, and it had made a nasty ring on the polish. Please don't let it happen

Dear, dear, the bad old days. What an improvement there has been. The rigid hierarchies of mistress and servant have broken down; snobbishness is at an end; classlessness and equality have arrived at last. All the New Statesman fairy-tale wishes would seem to have come true, in the field of domestic service at least.

But have they? And if they have, then what has been the cost? Thirty-five years ago I wrote a book about my experiences in domestic service during the pre-war years; and now, in 1972, I am back in the same field once more and am observing, with a sort of be-mused wonder, the kind of changes that have taken place since I was last here.

have taken place since I was last here.

The biggest single change (apartfrom the astonishing rise in wages) has been a massive loss of confidence on the part of employers. There are exceptions, of course, particularly among the over-60s, but by and large employers have become timid, ill-at-ease and guiltwiden.

They no longer seem to feel that they have a right to have their work done for them. In general, they have become apologetic and servile, and seem to be nagged constantly by an awful sense of inferiority at being the one who isn't working.

For idleness, nowadays, is no longer a status symbol — in fact quite the reverse — and consequently many employers will go to quite absurd lengths never to be caught idling by their domestic: at the first thuds of honest toil approaching the living room, they will leap from armchair or sofa, stuff their whodunnits under the cushions, and rush madly around the room fiddling with things, in a desperate attempt to look busy.

I have one gentleman who regularly reads his thrillers propped against the typewriter so that he can whisk something that looks like work over them as I come in with the Hoover.

does are a terrible nuisance.

She may for instance assuage her sense of guilt by pushing all her mess out of sight just before you arrive—dirty coffee cups shoved behind window-curtains, crumpled handkerchiefs kicked under the bed — that sort of thing.

It is maddening for two reasons: first that it adds to, rather than reduced, the work to be done — for all these objects still have to be pulled out of their hiding-places and dealt with: and second that this kind of surface-tidying actually destroys quite a lot of

Before the war, the most you could flope for in the way of conversation would be a few bright, formal inquiries from your mistress as to the health of your relatives; whereas nowadays a veritable Mrs. Dale's Diary descends on you the moment you walk in at the door; all your employer's marital and maternal problems, interpersed with your own, enliven the morning's work.

It can be quite fascinating.

But, of course, there is a price to be paid: and the coin in which it is paid is privacy. When I say "privacy," I am not talking about the secrets of one's private life but privacy of a much more subtle kind — a kind of privacy that was fostered and kept sacrosant by that very hierarchical, class-ridden society that we have been at such pains to destroy during my lifetime.

Sometimes, in the chatty, egalitarian households I work for today. I find myself longing, at odd moments, for the kind of personal space that the bad old system provided, for maid and mistress alike.

It may have been very snobbish and undemocratic, but there was some-thing deeply restful about the convention which allowed you simply not to exist when working in your employer's

Chairman Resigns

EDMONTON (CP) - Nor-ert Berkowitz, chairman of the Edmonton Library Board, has resigned following a board decision to reinstate a dismissed employee.

The employee, Nikki Nicholson, was dismissed last month following an incident with a supervisor but was reinstated at a board meeting last week into a grievance lodged by the Canadian Union of Public Employees. Dr. Berkowitz, in an interview Wednesday, said he resigned because the board, "with a bare quorum and a bare majority took action on a grievance that I could not accept."

naking the proposed new baby bonus plan an issue in an election - if Prime Minister Trudeau calls one.

The New Democratic Party withdrew in the Commons Wednesday its previous qualified agreement to allow the government bill, outlining changes in the plan, second-reading and advancement to committee discussion.

Party Leader David Lewis brushed aside denials from Health Minister John Munro to charge that some welfare recipients will receive only half of the proposed payments under the new plan. He said of the whole bill:

"It is a veritable nightmare in administration and is inand low and middle income families." He said its provi-sions will hurt "the poorest children in this land."

The Conservatives — who have not yet indicated whether they will give the plan second-reading approval — NDP and Social Credit have protested government intentions of removing the universality of family allowance payments to increase payments to the poor while reducing or ending them for those with higher incomes.

He said inside and outside the House Mr. Lewis was misreading the bill and that the half payment applied only to children in federally-sup-ported institutions.

Mr. Lewis was just as firm that he was correct in his as-sessment and that Munro should read his own bill.

We polled a panel of experts on who makes the best hamburger in town.

You can't fool experts of any age. Not on something as personal and tempting as a hamburger.

So we asked a group of hamburger lovers to talk about a subject dear to their hearts hamburgers. We asked them to compare our legendary White Spot hamburger to the other best-sellers in town. Conclusion: the White Spot creation met with more oohs!"

and ahs! of approval than the closest runner-up. Of course, the test wasn't entirely fair. After all, there doesn't have to be such a thing as a 'standard' White Spot hamburger. You can order it any way you want it . . . with cheese, mushrooms, bacon . . . you name it.

And our buns had us at an advantage, too. They're baked fresh daily in our own bakery. With the same care that our butcher shop uses in selecting the choicest beef. Not only that, but White Spot's secret relish recipe adds a lot of munch

So you can see that putting the competitor's hamburger up against a White Spot hamburger isn't a square deal. White Spot hamburgers have too many little extras going for them.

The ultimate test, of course is for you to taste the difference for yourself and then you decide.

See you at the White Spot.

Comein... taste the difference!

Role of Soccer Salesman Something New for Primo

Primo Villanueva was out of cast. But he was still carrying the ball, even if it was for another sport.

Primo Villanueva ... hmmmm! The name had ring to it.
Let's see now, it was in 1954 that the B.C. Lions were born:
"The Lions will roar in '54." That was the slogan. The Lions won one game that inaugural season, and the next year they got a fellow who has been a Vancouver citizen ever since.

It was Primo Villanueva, fresh out of the University of California at Los Angeles, and if relatively small by today's standards, still very good as a football halfback and a B.C. Lion until 1959. Besides, he was one of the club's most popular

He's still involved in the game, as a coach at Kitsilano High School in Vancouver. "Not so good," he said of the club's record, "I think we finished third out of four." Of high school fcotball, he suggested the B.C. variety has a long way to go before it can hope to close the gap on the U.S. type.

"There just isn't any solid program, equipment is usually only meagre at best, and any Canadian kid trying to make it in the U.S. just can't do it through the high school program

Canadians Need Time to Catch Up

This was no rap against the youngsters, just the system, which has been knocked before, and it's tough on Canadians because "it takes them a long time just to catch up to the American player," he suggested.

And the Lions? "I'm more of a fan now than when I was playing," he said. "And they've got something this year," he enthused of the signing of Johnny Musso, a running back from the University of Alabama."

But talking football wasn't the express purpose of Villanue-va's visit, not Canadian football at any rate.

Primo is the front man "I've never done this before" for the Spanish International TV network which is presenting here, and in several other cities in the United States and Canada, soccer, live, and in color, two of the quarter finals of the European Championship Cup. The feature matches are between soccer, live, and in color, two of the quarter finals of the European Championship Cup. The feature matches are between England and West Germany, and Italy and Belgium, one following the other, the first game being truly live, and the second one, delayed about two hours; because in actuality, both games age being played at approximately the same time.

Reaction so far? "Real good," in some places, "not bad" in Vancouver, he said of the games which will be shown on a glant screen at Memorial Arena, April 29.

Spoken like a true salesman, which Villanueva also is. For besides operating a specialty restaurant, featuring Mexican dishes, since he retired from the Lions 13 years ago, Primo also is in the marketing field.

He sells tamales and other Mexican fare. "I make food, and market it," he said, of his firm, Primo's Enterprises. Yes, business is good.

business is good.

And how, pray, did an ex-Canadian football player get involved in soccer football? Well, it seems that Primo has a brother, Danny Villanueva, who probably will best be remembered for his place-kicking chores with Los Angeles Rams and Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League. Danny also happens to be part owner of a Mexican TV station in L.A., which is tied in with Spanish International, which has TV rights to the European Chu, and deep the Canada. to the European Cup, and would you give us a hand in Canada?

Does he know anything about the game? "Not really, I've never had anything to do with roundball," he said honestly. "I was hoping you'd tell me," he laughed.

"But they tell me, this is a big playoff, and then ask the question would you pay $8.50 or $10 to see the Super Bowl?"

"I sure would." Primo said he replied.

run fish. However, the number of fish entering these streams during late April, May and June is usually very small and apgler success is limited. A small number of streams with highelevation sources are the exception and do have sizeable runs of steelhead late in April and throughout the early part of May.

For the ardent steelhead angler, fishing these streams until early June, clear water conditions demand lighter line and tackle. But with lighter lines, the tackle-busting lunkers and "race horse" kelts common at this time are almost impossible to handle unless all conditions are ideal. Last spring I had the frustrating experience of finding a run of these powerful fish in the middle of May only to loose the first seven I hooked. In the small stream, the fish either ran out, broke the six-pound-test leader, or wouldn't stay hooked.

With the new "Cam-o-Flage" line I am now able to use 12-

Leeds Set Back by Newcastle

Leeds United lost, 1-0, to Newcastle United Wednesday night to dent its chances of winning the English First Division soccer championship.

The position at the top of the table is Derby with 56 oints; Manchester City 55, Liverpool 54 and Leeds 53.

Leeds had two games in hand of Derby County before Wednesday night and with 10 days to the end of the season was poised to take the title. But its defeat caused a leading bookmaker to lengthen the odds to 11-4 and instal Derby as 6-5 favorite,

OTTAWA (CP) — If you don't have a bank account or fron-clad identification, you could be in trouble when you try to cash that government tax refund cheque.

For three years, a senior public servant here has been cashing his government pay cheques at a nearby bank branch. The clerks know him well enough to greet him by

But this week the bank refused to cash his tax refund cheque, which was for more than $1,500. They said they would accept it as a deposit to open a bank account, but would not change it into cash.

would not change it into eash.

The public servant was carrying a driver's licence, various credit cards and an official government identification card with his photograph.

He later called various officials in the taxation division of the department of national revenue, only to find out that the federal government does not want to get involved in the problems of taxpayers cashing their refund cheques.

Toronto Trial Most Expensive

TORONTO (CP) — Fourmen accused of slaying a Toronto dishwasher on June 6, 1970, were found guilty of noncapital murder early today and each sentenced to life imprisonment in what was said to be the most experience.

to be the most expensive case in Toronto's history.

Their arrests ended an investigation that spanned 13 months and 20,000 miles in

The jury returned its ver-dict at 1:28 a.m. after deliberating for more than 14 hours.

Army deserter, Sreto Dzambas, 24, St. Thomas, Ont., and Nicholas Popovic, 32, Toronto, all pleaded not guilty in the death of Trevor Poll, 46, in a restaurant here.

Officials said the case cost possibly as much as $300,000.

Crown Attorney Norman Maturalak estimated court costs.

tusiak estimated court costs alone at $100,000 in bringing 29 witnesses from the United States and providing four legal aid lawyers for the accused during the 21/2-week trial.

Inspector Jack Webster of the homicide squad noted that four officers worked almost full-time for a year on the case, making the first arrest a year to the day after Poll's death.

Posties Deny Blame

OTTAWA (CP) - The Letter Carriers' Union of Canada has criticized Postmaster-General Jean-Pierre Cote for making "erroneous and irresponsible statements" regarding possible resumption of Saturday mail service,

In a statement Wednesday, the union said it finds it de-plorable that Mr. Cote "seems to Jaunch an election cam-paign on the back of the letter carriers.

Post office difficulties are not due to the absence of Sat-urday mail deliveries, the union said, They come from

In a Vancouver speech, Mr. Cote said Saturday mail deliveries may have to be re-sumed in order to restore ef-ficiency. Post office produc-tivity has fallen 12.5 per cent since 1985 despite better pay and working conditions, he said.

The letter carriers' said delays in mail deliveries are due to a reduction in the number of deliveries made by letter carriers every day. Routes have been extended and the volume of mail carried by postmen has been increased.

FEDERAL AGENCY FINDS FEDERAL FIRMS FOUL

RICHMOND (CP) — Two federal agencies have been singled out as polluters by a federally-funded team of pollution hunters in this suburban Vancouver community.

Vancouver International Airport and the North Fraser Harbor Commission⁹ were named as culprits Wednesday by Wilfred Paulik, co-ordinator of a environment study paid for by Ottawa's Local Initiative Program.

Paulik complained that smoke belches up to 1,000 feet into the sky from fuel burned for what airport officials say are firefighting exercises. He said fires are observed as said fires are observed as often as three times a week.

He said that almost every day, unnecessary smoke fills the air over Iona Island in the Fraser delta from mill debris burned by the North Fraser Harbor Commission. He said the Vancouver Harbors Board some time ago stopped burning debris.

An airport spokesman said provincial pollution control authorities sampled amoke from the fire-fighting exercises last fall and determined that the fires are not a pollu-

"People ignore smoke belching from chimneys of industrial firms along the river," he said. "They zee our smoke as something sensational and protest about us, instead."

Ottawa May Push Clinics To Halt Medicare Waste

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister John Munro and his senior officials are concerned that Canada may soon be unable to afford to pay for its medical care programs unless needless expenses are elimin-

In an Ottawa dispatch, the Toronto Star quotes Munro as saying unnecessary tests and operations, duplication of facilities in nearby hospitals and purchases of expensive equipment that is seldom used are among the factors involved.

It also quotes him as saying doctors' skills are underutilized by 60 to 90 per cent because of time spent treating minor ailments such as colds and coughs that could be handled by murses.

'Power Struggle' In Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Two government departments are having a power struggle over which should be responsible for Indian cultural centres, the president of the Native Council of Canada said Wednesday night.

Tony Belcourt, speaking at a public meeting organized by the Indian-Eskimo Association, said the departments are the secretary of state's and Indian affairs.

In a sometimes bitter attack against the Indian affairs department, Mr. Belcourt said its budget of $300 million was used to line the pockets of its officials and expand bureaucracy.

"If by some magic, all of the Indian people would disappear tomorrow, it would still ake the Indian affairs department 100 years to get rid of itelf," said Mr. Belcourt.

Tagak Curley, head of the nuit Tapirisat (Eskimo rotherhood), called for a setement of Indian and Eskimo and claims in the North.

Such claims should be seted before any real northern evelopment takes place, said r. Curley.

Alan Clarke, president of falmian-Eskimo Associano, told about 300 persons at meeting that his associan will move its administrae office to Ottawa this ar.

t was felt that the closer association was to lawkers of the land, the more bould do for native people. "'That's a scandalous waste." Munro feels the medical and hospital insurance plans are not succeeding because "their emphasis is on curing disease instead of preventing it," the newspaper says.

It adds that the federal government is considering a formula tying the growth in health costs to increases in the Gross National Product, together with a $640 million "thrust fund" to be spent over five years in encouraging the provinces to set up community health clinics rather than hospitals.

The Star quotes Dr. Maurice Leclair, Munro's deputy minister, as saying emphasis must be shifted to preventive programs such as immunization, nutrition programs and pre-natal care.

"If we could take a fraction of what we spend now and shift/it to prevention we could cut down illness and the cost of treating it dramatically . . Preventive medicine would encourage people to keep fit."

Ottawa Will Get Request For Poor People's Fund

organized poor will be asking the federal government this year to set up a poor people's development corporation with development corporation with $50 million in the kitty.

Majorie Hartling, co-ordina-tor of the national antitor of the national anti-poverty organization said Wednesday the request will be made to Finance Minister John Turner within several months.

Hartling said the proposed corporation, similar to the federally-established Canada Developmant Corporation, would help poverty organizations to set up self-sustaining or profit-making businesses.

"The businesses might be co-op service stations, co-op stores, craft shops and maybe low-income housing," she said.

The corporation would allow low-income groups to get somewhere on the many projects they have in mind but which can't be started because of a lack of funding."

The proposal will include a suggestion that the corporasuggestion that the corpora-tion be governed equally by representatives of the anti-poverty organization and per-sons selected by the govern-

A Tax Reduction! That's Right

Greater Victoria school board had good news for taxpayers today with the announcement that the district's 1972 mill area for education will be almost one mill lower than last year.

The actual reduction will be .87 mills, board chairman Allan McKinnon said today. In 1971 the mill rate was 31.98 and this year it will be 31.11.

A board spokesman said the tax saving for the average homeowner in School District 61 would be about $5.

However, if the $15 increase in the provincial homeowner grant is taken into account the saving on education taxation this year is substantially higher.

"It's a happy day for me," said McKinnon, who released the mill rate forecast after board officials studied the budget returned this morning with department of education approval.

The board chairman explained that the reduction was mainly the result of three factors: increased taxable assessment, the provincial government as suming a slightly larger share of operating costs and

"There's only one word for that, and that's 'ass-back-wards'," Campbell said.

According to Sooke representative Howard Elder, rural residents in the region aren't getting involved in planning because it looks too complicated and too costly.

Elder, who organized the meeting because he said he has "very strong feelings" about planning, said citizens in his area will get involved when they start to believe more in the regional system.

For these students must take only four mandatory courses in Grades 11 and 12 to graduate — Grades 11 and 12 English, Grade 11 social studies and Grade 11 physical and health education and guidance.

The remaining subjects — within guidelines set by the school and department of education — are the student's

"The whole object . . . is to try to ensure that (a student's) studies will be as appropriate as possible to what he wants to do," says John Meredith superintendent of instructional services for the department of education.

Until now, students entering Grade 11 were channelled into one of several programs: academic and technical, commercial, industrial; community services, visual and performing arts, or agriculture.

What this means is that this year's Grade 10 student can create individual programs for Grades 11 and 12, to suit his interests and future plans.

And the job of advising them, making sure they use their new freedom wisely, falls on parents and school counsellors.

"Now the responsibility is on (the students') shoulders," says Bob Mitchell, part-time counsellor at Lansdowne Junior Secondary School. "We have more than the usual number of requests for assistance, to the point now that we're taking each student individually."

Lansdowne has one full-time and four part-time counsellors helping students plan their programs. Students from this school go on to three senior secondary schools — Oak Bay Senior Secondary, Victoria High and Mount Douglas Se-

The University of British Columbia's admissions policy remains the same, asking simply for high school graduation, plus course prerequisites for certain university faculties.

With the new combined studies program, "the possibili-ties are quite fascinating;" says Bruce Naylor, director of curriculums for the department of education.

A student could take enough academic courses to ensure his university entrance, then take an electronics and a metal-work course, if they interest him.

Board Gets Ready for MB

Directors of the Capital Re-gional Board heeded a warn-ing Wednesday that a forest company's plans to go into the real estate business on the Gulf Islands could find the board unprepared to deal with the situation.

For Outer Gulf Islands director Jim Campbell, who rang the alarm bells, the de-bate on the issue produced a significant achievement.

He persuaded the board's planning committee to accept the basic principle for which he has long campaigned—that one way of tackling such problems is to have planning at the local, grass-roots level.

The committee approved his motion recommending that the district enact "official community plans which are in conformity with a regional plan and have a consensus of support in each sensus of support in each community."

CAN'T WAIT

A regional plan for develop-ment of the Gulf Islands is in preparation, but still only in the embryonic stage.

Campbell stressed repeated-y that, faced with MacMillan Bloedel's intention to sell 1,000 acres of real estate on Galiano and Salt Spring Islands, the board could not afford to wait for this master plan to be completed. be completed.

The company wants to subdivide logging land it no longer needs, and Campbell warned that an early "slick" application to do this under the land-use contract princi-

'Educational Snobbery Hurts Students

By DONNA CLEMENTS Times Staff

DUNCAN - The "education snobbery" which forces students to take academic instead of commercial programs is a hard nut to crack, Allan Mole, head of Cowichan Senior Secondary's commerce department, said Wednesday.

Because of the attitude, Mole told the Chamber of Commerce, "a lot of top notch scholars" are missing excellent training.

He said the school is trying to get more academic stu-dents to at least elect some may graduate with a "a mar-

He said many parents are still reluctant to have their children leave the university program and as a result stu-dents go untrained into the working world.

"The fault of this attitude lies in two areas," Mole said.
"Some is with the educators but the main fault is with so-was to explain the school's business education program, detail how it is successful and advise them in what way they can help the program and provide jobs for students.

Skills, Abilities Recorded

"Just because a student has graduated on the commercial program does not necessarily mean he or she is qualified for the business world," he warned.

Mole said students enrolled in the school's secretarial, accountancy and clerical spe-cialties cover a wide spetrum of abilities.

"Some are competent, ca-pable, have initiative and work hard while others have no ability, no initiative and don't care. Students on the vocational program are gen-erally there as a second

Mole said the students, mostly girls, go on the pro-gram because they have been gram because they have been counselled that they can't handle the academic program, or realize themselves they are not equipped and don't want to go to university. He pointed out that many of the academic students never reach university. reach university.

reach university.

"We have some students with ability but others have to be coached and encouraged. We are faced with some who route to graduate and not as a career. Some students we do fail and others who are willing to work we give passing grades."

Mole said that, as of June, the 60 Grade 12 students com-pleting the commercial program, will receive certificates with the students' commercial skills as well as abilities re-

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. The Electric Fetus, a shop that sells records and other youth-oriented items near the University of Minnesota, has been evicted for staging a nude record sale.

Customers were offered a free $4 record of their choice March 25 if they disrobed in the rear of the shop and walked to the front to make their selection.

Co-owner Dan Foley, 26, said: "It was just a lark ... How did we know 40 people would show up and qualify for a free record?"

Only Lime-Lovers Close to the House

Plants near house walls, or other types of walls where lime has been used in foundation construction, may be successfully beautiful - but they are not likely to be the kinds traditionally used for such areas by today's gardeners.

We see broadleaved evergreens, various conifers and even native dogwoods planted within a foot of foundation walls. As slender 18-inch youngsters they look delightful the owner visualizing the mature growth reaching, and remaining at, whatever height and breadth is desirable.

But within two years the plants and the owner are less happy. Yellowing bi leaves, perhaps defoliation, and a general look of resentment has taken over.

In most of these situations, the fault can be laid to traces of lime from the foundations being extracted by the water supplied to the young plants in summer, and perhaps from a downspout not properly connected with the tile drain around

We do sometimes see very old buildings (though we must look quickly before they disappear!) with good evergreen plants close to foundations whose lime content has long ago been depleted; also we see dogwoods happily shadowing log cabins in the woods where cedar doundation beams are the

When we see a flourishing peach tree trained against a house wall, clematis and wistaria scrambling up trellis supports from roots set at the foot of the wall, we realize these are lime tolerant, some are even lime-lovers.

Here we have a lucky situation, for the gardener may choose from the lime tolerant group for wall plantings, and put the lime haters further from the house where soil acidity is easily maintained.

Most spring and summer flowering shrubs in the leaf-tos-ing class (deciduous) are either lime-lovers or are lime toler-ant. Providing the soil is constantly enriched with compost and old manure used as a surface mulch each year, a succes-sion of interest and color can be readily maintained against

The presence of the lime from the foundation replaces whatever foods are in the soil so that it is soon depicted. Especially this occurs in winter, so that early spring feedings followed by the mulch are beneficial.

Lilacs, forsythias, weigelas, the climbing hydrangea, co-toneasters, escallonias, tarmarix, peonies, delphiniums, helle-bores, carnations, nasturiums and sweet peas — a broad range of flowering plants suited to soil with lime traces. So don't feel deprived if camellias fail.

War's Blight Evident, but Beauty Still Lurks

(WP) — This remains a love-ly city, quieter and even cleaner than most. There are broad Parisian boulevards, some shaded with the kind of stately trees that pollution long ago killed off in Saigon. Sunsets on the banks of the Mekong River with the now empty royal palace as a glittering backdrop, can be spec-tacular.

The large central market has a selection of meats, fruits and vegetables as good f not better than any in South Asia. Lately, largely for seasonal reasons, the price of foods has fallen so that they are now only slightly more expensive than two years ago:

It is measure of what Phnom Penh once was like that it could have been run down so far and still have so But it has run down very far.

The buildings look shabby, public places are neglected. Sidewalks are cluttered with barbed wire and wooden bunkers. Refugees from the countryside have streamed in poor and often pitiful. The population of Phnom Penh, it said, has more than doubled.

Off to the side of the main road that leads in from the airport is an area three football fields long where some of the refugees lived until a Communist rocket attack after midnight March 21 levelattack led most of their shacks, civ-Ilian casualties were in the hundreds. Survivors still mill around a small dispensary waiting for meagre handouts of clothes and other items.

Somehow, Phnom Penh has kept its natural charm and food is plentiful by the stan-dards of the world's majority. Life, except for those at the bottom, is bearable. But otherwise, the picture from the Cambodian capital is almost unrelievedly gloomy.

A war that is no longer new and goes well only at the en-emy's sufferance is sapping the public spirit. This is demonstrated in many ways. Fear and contempt for the armed teen-agers who make petty thieving demands on the pop-ulation (a pair of shoes, a meal without paying) has re-placed the admiration once felt for their rush to defend Corruption, the people say is getting increasingly worse. There is too much of the bon jour everywhere," a young Cambodian complains, using ing official palms. The pockets of military commanders are stuffed with the salaries of A few months ago the embarrassment became too great and the government abolished 30 battalions that never really existed. The fear of Vietnamese conquest, rooted in historic precedent, also seems less important in binding the people. In 1971, an 18-year-old girl named Sog Ghenda renlied when asked why she was fighting:

"I volunteered for this battle because I love my country. I am not afraid and I will fight until I get killed." Her fellow soldiers nodded approvingly. Such ardor rarely finds voice any more. Partly, it must be the physical cost, the dead and wounded, the families separated, the homes destroyed or aban-doned. The naivete of the early days about what had to come assured that it would seem especially harsh promise of the coup against Prince Sihanouk. The mon-archy, self-indulgent and patronizing, was abolished and with it went peace. Thus far the republic has offered them nothing better. Lon Nol, the semi-crippled mystic who presides over the country, is less a president than a surrogate what probably troubles the people most of all, however, is the realization that Cambodia is trapped in a war it cannot win and cannot stop until the interests of bigger and more powerful nations have been served, possibly at

Cambodia's expense.

If, for example, the present Vietnamese offensive below the Demilitarized Zone turned out for any reason to be decisive, finally forcing the two Vietnams and their superpower patrons to a settlement, how much would the Cambodians be forced to give up for the sake of a broader Indochina peace? The decicions, Cambodians realize, are not theirs to make.

From time to time there is even reason to doubt the in-tentions of the United States, on whose offerings Cambodia so completely depends. There was open dismay here when President Nixon in his eight-point peace plan failed to mention what might happend to Cambodia and how its borders would be guaranteed Then, aftr the China visit, Assistant Secretary of State Marshall Green was sent on a four of America's Asian allies to give them a report of what had gone on in Peking. The itinerary as first announced omitted Cambodia. Later it was added, officially only because Green was able to rearrange his fight plans.

Cambodians are baffled too, liese Phnom Penh should get Over all, however, the military situation in Cambodia has been reasonably stable. The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong over-ran wide areas of the Cambodian countryside

by the vagaries of American politics that lightly limit the aid they can receive. They know as well that there are some public figures who beafter Sihanouk was overthrown, and they have never been dislodged. Indeed, they have never even been threatened.

On the other hand, the Comterritory (or the population) bowel works its way out through an enlargement of the hole between muscles—a hole which normally is just big enough for the passage of the vas deferens (a tube which runs on each side from the testis up to a little reservoir for spermatozoa, or active elements in the semen). Usually if there is a rupture in one grain there is another on the other side.

Many men in early or middle life get what looks as if it would become a big rupture, but the bowel never comes down far enough to cause distress. If it does come down, the best treatment is an operation in which the holes in the abdominal wall are made so small that the loop of bowel can no longer come down.

Some men wear a truss (a metal spring which goes around the waist and presses a pad against the hole out of which comes the bowel). I knew an old rancher who suffered from an uncomfortable truss from age 25 to age 70. Finally, his rupture go so big it had to be operated on. Then he said, "I would cheerfully have hired someone to kiok me around the block for having put up with the truss for half a century." He was comfortable after the operation.

Rarely, there is a hernia in which a loop of small bowel gets caught under an adhesion inside the abdomen. In that case an operation should be performed quickly.

WHAT IS THE MASTER TWO-STEP TEST?

For years, physicians had difficulty in finding some way of demonstrating whether or not a man's coronary artery (big artery which supplies the heart with blood) was narrowed. One of the simplest ways of doing this, the Master two-step test, was devised by Dr. Arthur Master, a heart specialist in New York

In this test the heart is put under strain when the patient is asked to walk back and forth over a couple of steps, placed on the floor of the doctor's office. If one of the main arteries of a man's heart is so narrowed that it can supply sufficient oxygen to the muscle only when this muscle is contracting slowly, then when it is put under strain it won't get quite enough oxygen. As a result, a small part of it will become anemic, and then this spot will function so poorly that the impulse through the heart will retenu around it. will detour around it.

An electrocardiogram (the record of the tiny electric currents that go down through the heart muscle), made immediately after the man has taken the Master two-step test, will be abnormal, much as it would be if the muscle were dead and turned into scar tissue. In my experience, this test has worked

COUTURE

By VIOLET WEBER Every couture designer has at least one dress in his collection that seems just about right for every occasion whether the lady who buys it is a career woman, or an active community leader.

The dress pattern we offer today has just the attributes that well the control of the con tributes that will take it everywhere from early to Late day activities.

Designed by Gene Roy for Stanley Nelson it has a touch of the Oriental in its little mandarin collar, a flattering look for any woman. Two folded pleats give a very easy list to the skirt and the button-front, step-in-coat design is the favorite of every woman who has ever ruined a hairdo by having to pull a dress on over her head. Short sleeves, a leather tie belt and contrasting buttons complete the casual picture. The garment is made up in linen but also works up very nicely in lightweight wools, 'double-knits and is particularly pretty 'or a late-day look in a dark silk."

Groos' third bill would lay down stringent requirements for ship construction, particularly tankers and those carry ing dangerous cargoes like explosives.

Groos says he and Anderson are waging a two-man assault on Parliament in an effort to get a more realistic control of marine shipping.

A bill being prepared by Anderson will set down requirements for communication systems.

Groos has also given notice on a bill which will recommend the establishment of uge on the west coast.

TV, Radio 39 Greater Victoria school board had good news for taxpayers today with the announcement that the district's 1972 mill area for education will be almost one mill lower than last year.

The actual reduction will be .87 mills, board chairman Allan McKinnon said today. In 1971 the mill rate was 31.98 and this year it will be 31.11.

A board spokesman said the tax saving for the average homeowner in School District 61 would be about $5.

However, if the $15 increase in the provincial homeowner grant is taken into account the saving on education taxation this year is substantially higher.

"It's a happy day for me," said McKinnon, who released the mill rate forecast after board officials studied the budget returned this morning with department of education approval.

The board chairman explained that the reduction was mainly the result of three factors: increased taxable assessment, the provincial government as-suming a slightly larger share of operating costs and Victoria Times THURSDAY, APRIL 20, 1972 25

the fact that the board has cut its spending to comply with the government's education finance formula;

Last year the district's taxable assessment was $382,807,781, this year it is $405,677,184.

A board spokesman said the average provincial mill rate reduction for education this year will be 31.89, which is 78 mills higher than the Greater Victoria school district's rate.

Although effects of the board's 1972 budget were released today, the actual mill rate will not be struck

The department believes buyers will increasingly avoid inferior imports once the trademark become generally recognized as a guarantee of quality and authenticity.

Capital Regional District's rural representatives today met Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell to seek ways of correcting what one of them termed the region's 'ass-backwards' planning Esquimalt MLA Herb Bruch also attended but no urban members of the board and no regional staff.

Outer Gulf Islands repre sentative Jim Campbell said following the meeting many of his people believe the rural board member has no voice in regional decisions.

didn't agree with this view, but he said he believes the region must de-centralize of its functions and adopt the method of commu-nity planning.

There's too much initiative being taken by the board's technical people, Campbell

"The process that's been going on is that the technical people have been assuming that they have the responsibility to define the planning options and they've been going to the people to seek approval after the options have been defined.

"There's only one word for that, and that's 'ass-back wards'," Campbell said.

According to Sooke representative Howard Elder, viral residents in the region aren't getting involved in planning because it looks too complicated and too costly.

Elder, who organized the meeting because he said, he has "very strong feelings" about planning, said citizens in his area will get involved when they start to believe more in the regional system.

He said a series of local community plans is a necessity in the electoral districts.

Elder said he has the feeling on the board that he can't get done what he wants to do.

Free Port Policy Urged

Addressing the association's 41st annual meeting, Mr. Gervais, who was re-elected for a second one-year term, said:

second one-year term, said:
"I personally know of no greater stimulus to the development of secondary industry than the creation of free-port areas where commerce and manufacturing can be carried on at an expanding rate outside the Canadian tariff wall.

"The stimulation to Canada's export trade resulting from a free-port policy would make the adoption of this principle attractive and logical."

Under a free-port policy, certain ports or areas in the certain ports or areas in the country could be designated as duty-free centres where imports could be brought in duty free for export or for further processing.

Mr. Gervais, vice-president of St. Arnaud and Bergevin Ltd. of Montreal, said he expects imports to Canada to increase by 10 per cent during the current year. Imports amounted to $16 billion last year.

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean-Louis Gergais, president of the Canadian Importers Asso-ciation, has urged that Can-ada should adopt a free-port Mr. Gervais, although gains were recorded because of improved economic conditions which should continue in 1972. Now that the textile and clothing board has been set up, said Mr. Gervais, there is wide concern among importers that boards to deal with other specific products may also be established. "There now is a potential threat that other products will fail under the restrictive controls of new government boards."

The association's stand is that international trade must be a two-way street, he said, and any restrictions on im-ports to Canada will obviously be challenged by restrictions from other countries.

The actual reduction will be .87 mills, board chairman Allan McKinnon said today. In 1971 the mill rate was 31.98 and this year it will be 31.11.

A board spokesman said the tax saving for the average homeowner in School District 61 would be about $5.

However, if the $15 increase in the provincial homeowner grant is taken into account the saving on education taxation this year is substantially higher.

"It's a happy day for me," said McKinnon, who released the mill rate forecast after board officials studied the budget returned this morning with department of education approval.

The board chairman explained that the reduction was mainly the result of three factors; increased taxable assessment, the provincial government assuming a slightly larger share of operating costs and ding as an afterthought that the provincial government had seemed "sensitive" in recent months to criticism of its education finance formula,

"I don't know whether it's election talk or what, but I'm grateful for it," he added.

A board spokesman said the average provincial mill rate reduction for education this year will be 31.89, which is .78 mills higher than the Greater Victoria school district's rate.

Although effects of the board's 1972 budget were released today, the actual mill rate will not be struck

Free Port Policy Urged

second one-year term, said:
"I personally know of no greater stimulus to the development of secondary industry, than the creation of free-port areas where commerce and manufacturing can be carried on at an expanding rate out-side the Canadian tariff wall.

"The stimulation to Canada's export trade resulting from a free-port policy would make the adoption of this principle attractive and logical.

Under a free-port policy, certain ports or areas in the country could be designated as duty-free centres where imports could be brought in duty free for export or for further processing.

Now that the textile and clothing board has been set up, said Mr. Gervais, there is wide concern among importers that boards to deal with other specific products may also be established.

"There now is a potential threat that other products will fall under the restrictive controls of new government boards."

The association's stand is that international trade must be a two-way street, he said, and any restrictions on imports to Canada will obviously be challenged by restrictions from other countries.

Mr. Gervais will thead a 68member trade mission to China for a nine-day visit. The group will depart Sunday.

Apollo Mission in Trouble

HOUSTON (AP) - Mission control ordered Apollo 16's lunar module pilots to delay touchdown on the moon at least one orbit today and considered cancelling the landing because of a failure in the engine of the separately flying command ship.

The command shp was unable to execute a firing on schedule and consideration was being given to re-docking the ships and starting for home using the engine of the lunar

"We have a wave off," ground controllers told John W.

Young and Charles M. Duke Jr. just 25 minutes before they were to steer the lunar craft Orion, to a landing in the moon's unexplored mountains.

A spokesman for the National Aeronautics Space Administration said: "The crew of Apollo 16 in the lunar lander Orion and command Ship Casper are in no immediate danger. We're holding off on the landing until we get the problem straightened out."

The thrust vector system controls the stabilization, rate or firing and the steering of the big command ship engine.

Mission Control said that if it could not be corrected, ex-

Then the astronauts could fire the lunar module engine to brake out of orbit to head back to earth.

It cropped up when Thomas K. Mattingly, alone in the command ship Casper, reported he was unable to fire the craft's engine because a secondary circuit on a thrust control device did not come up to specifications during a check.

Only minutes earlier, the ground had advised Young and Duke to "anticipate a wave off."

The had separated Orion from Casper two hours earlier

and were preparing to fire their engine to start the descent to the surface. They had checked out all systems, and except for a few minor problems, everything was working well.

The landing had been set for 12:41 p.m. PST.

At the time of separation, the two ships were in orbits ranging from about 12.4 to 67 miles above the surface.

Then Mattingly was to have fired the command ship engine to raise his orbit to ranging from about 60 to 70 miles high to conduct a series of experiments while Young and
